Subject: RE: [REDACTED] Jury Trials tomorrow, 3/1/11, Malden District

All -- Lisa and Della testified yesterday and were excellent -- and the jury came back guilty. We will not be going forward on the cases involving the drugs tested by Kate and Annie, as the D will be pleading out to those charges on a later date. Please note that there is a co-defendant in these cases who defaulted yesterday, so we will likely be resummonsing you for testimony at that D's trials sometime in the future. Thanks very much for your assistance and patience yesterday, and great work Lisa and Della!

Felicia

Thank you Della -- and my apologies that the summons never made it to you. I know Annie receive her summons -- I will call during business hours this morning to ensure each of you is available. Also, please note that, assuming the case goes forward, we may not need your testimony until tomorrow (3/2) morning, as we have 5 or 6 witness that need to testify before each of your testimony would be heard.

Thank you,
Felicia

Good Evening Felicia,

I don't have a subpoena for this case. You can send one via email for tomorrow's date. I have a few Superior Court cases that I'm waiting to hear about for this week and one federal case scheduled for the end of the week. You may reach me in the lab at the number listed below. Thanks for keeping us updated.

Subject: [REDACTED] Jury Trials tomorrow, 3/1/11, Malden District

Hello,

Just wanted to check in with each of you about the above-scheduled jury trial tomorrow in the Malden District Court (lab no's [REDACTED]). Your summonses should place you on call, and you can remain on call, but wanted to let you know that I do expect these trials to go forward tomorrow, and will call you in the morning when we have confirmed the cases will be proceeding and need you to head over to Malden. If the judge sitting in the jury session tomorrow is the same judge that was sitting there today, I will need you all to be present when the jury is impaneled (likely at 10:30 am or thereabouts) so they can see you in person, so I will call you as soon as we know in the morning that we are in fact going forward. Please let me know if you have any questions or time constraints and we'll do our best to work around them – if you could also let me know at what numbers you can be reached tomorrow that will be very helpful. Obviously, we won't ask you to come in until we're sure the case is going forward. Thanks very much.

Felicia
